Security and confidentiality

Only people properly authorized may access Personal Data that is relevant to performing their job. These people may only use the data to the extent this is essential to do their job and the purposes as set out in this Privacy Policy. They are bound to observe strict professional secrecy and to comply with all technical instructions and requirements designed to safeguard the confidentiality of the Personal Data and the security of the systems that contain this data.

BCC Corporate takes internal technical and organizational measures to prevent Personal Data being accessible to and processed by unauthorized parties, or being accidentally changed or deleted. There are internal security measures in place to protect the premises, servers, network, data transfers and the data itself. This security is supervised by a specialist department.

But BCC Corporate does not have any, or adequate, influence on certain aspects of (the technical process of) data processing. This is true, for instance, of Internet or mobile communication methods (e.g. smartphones), where it is not possible to provide full security. When criminals, (including computer criminals such as hackers), are active, BCC Corporate cannot be expected to always succeed in preventing attacks. Sometimes BCC Corporate itself is unaware of such crimes, for instance if someone succeeds in using your identity details by installing spyware on your computer or by means of phishing. That is why you are also asked to take into account that certain channels are less secure than others when transferring data to BCC Corporate or requesting BCC Corporate to transfer certain data to you.

There are things you can do to prevent potential misuse, or at least make it more difficult. These include:

- installing antivirus software and keeping it up to date
- not leaving your equipment and means of access unattended and reporting the loss of means of access immediately
- logging out if you are not using an application (even temporarily)
- keeping your passwords strictly confidential and using strong passwords, i.e. avoiding obvious combinations of letters and figures and combining enough of both
- being vigilant about anything out of the ordinary, such as an unusual website address (e.g. www2.bcc.be), or unusual requests (e-mail requests for customer details), etc.
- complying with special instructions and guidelines from BCC Corporate.
